 (The line that never rings!)

You can see Tosser's problem. "Where do I set a trail for Surrey in midwinter?" There is a right answer: use our sunny uplands, use slopes too steep to turn into slop. The answer "Prince's Coverts" was emphatically wrong, and landed us with a trail which was tedious, tiring, and monotonous. It began famously badly, when for 10 minutes or more no one could find where flour resumed and the hare was not accompanying us. It cannot be said often enough: hares should go round again! And thereafter we just slogged around, trudging through slush and hoping it would all soon be over.

Tosser might say "Well, I made it short. No one forced you to follow my long cut!" It

Checking Chicken, who had been obliged to give up and return early. "I would never drive all that way just for the beer!"

My omitting our young leveret from last week's report occasioned comment. (Leaving before the Circle I was unaware of her significance.) I am all in favour of children on a trail; who knows, they might grow into hashers? You all saw my grandchildren when I set a trail (with one of them) for my 80th birthday in 2016. But what really matters to SH3 is getting their parents to run: our future depends on it.

In modern politics, which depend on personalities, not principles, you can understand Tory grandees asking themselves anxiously whether their once charismatic BJ is an is a valid point; my amour propre interfered with common sense. Most people had the wits to accept the shorter version. Those of us who took the long cut were greatly assisted by the fast few in front of us - Atalanta, Stevie Blunder, Miss Bean, I am not sure - who had assiduously marked through most of the checks. And I must admit, at previous visits to this area I have never been invited to run over that golf course. (Is it even a right of way?)

The GM was with our group of long-cutters, and, finding that the great majority had been at the beer already for a good while, called an early Circle, which began with asset or a liability; across the Atlantic, Republican grandees have an opposite problem. It is not so much Trump the man who matters as the idea of Trump among his very many enthusiastic followers. We personify regimes; the English loathed Hitler, but really the problem was the Nazis. The target then was the Jews; the target in Europe now is outsiders, immigrants. Fascism has become nativism. In the US, the same could be said: resentment of Latinos arriving at the border with Mexico. But the deeper, darker, dislike is of African-Americans, the fear that white supremacy is doomed.

an account of the bathroom antics of our Uncle Gerry, unwittingly recorded on camera. Visitors were few, and Wally's brother had vanished, so it was soon Tosser's turn. For reasons I have yet to fathom, instead of drinking his down-down he threw the beer at me, an act of gratuitous discourtesy which he at once regretted. The singing had been ragged and ill-coordinated; perhaps he noticed my emphatic "Drink it down!" Anyway, I went home, so allowing at least one of those trying to park to find a space: the Star is very popular on Sundays. Let's not use Prince's Coverts again in winter.

First On felt she should correct my assertion that she had only been at Epsom Downs for the beer; she had been one of those, failed by Belcher as

Addendum 2400

I was accused, by the GM (in Addendum 2399) of "egging on" Tosser, mudwise. I should mention that he and over twenty members of WH3 were subjected to similar conditions on our last hash (Run 1921) from The New Inn, at Send, by a virgin hare, Merial/Pusseye. This'll be OK, I thought, up and down the towpaths of the Wey Navigation and footpaths of the lakes and River Wey; no such luck, she found so much mud that when we crossed into the Old Woking (water) meadows, it didn't seem much worse, only bloody awful, and it was dark, to boot! Since it was local to JArthur, I told him the venue but he had the good sense not to come. Perhaps Tosser was influenced by this run. To be fair Tosser's run wasn't quite twice as slithery as Atalanta's last run.

Richard "I'm a silly bugger" Nixon started it, giving us Watergate and, for some reason, that last syllable zeitgeistised its way into history. Later, Reagan and Bush gave us Irangate. As for SH3 on FFH22, Bods gave us Birianygate and after COVID19 reared its head, Uncle Gerry gave us the long saga of Gibbergutgate. Last week our very own scribe gave us Daisygate and has now tried to deflect criticism by accusing Tosser of Selenicmudgate. You couldn't make it up! As for Tosser's behaviour at the circle, please see Letters to the Editor.

Over to the RA: The RA was abreast of current affairs. Prince Andrew, Boris and thought it was unfair that Australia hadn't allowed Novak Djokovic into their country, after all England had let the Le Pro enter.

Uncle G wanting the circle started while the RA was still out on the run.

And of course the RA demanded TOSSER apologise to the legendary FRB after Atalanta had given him a wipe down.

Letters to the editor

Dear Sir,

Although I have no doubt that our scribe would never allow any trivial personal opinions to stand in the way of his customary impartial and objective criticism of a run I do feel it incumbent upon me to offer an explanation of the regrettable incident whereby a certain quantity of liquid (one really cannot call it beer) came to be projected onto the front of his jacket during the circle. It was thus:

While receiving the usual recognition for my modest attempts as a hare I glanced into my mug and noticed what appeared to be a fly swimming around in the content [I wonder what it was doing in there? Maybe the breaststroke! MB]. I therefore started to gently swirl it around with the intention of ejecting whatever it was. In the course of this action my arm suffered an involuntary spasm, perhaps occasioned by some biting insect having worked its way into my jacket. My arm jerked forward, propelling the contents of the mug into the air in front of me and onto FRB, who happened to be standing in the circle at the time.

The RA correctly condemned the incident, however unintended, and suggested that I take the knee to FRB by way of apology.

Now, my knees being my knees, this would not have been advisable because once down, I would have been unable to get up. Unlike Insulate Britain, I do not need glue to keep me in place. This would then have created an obstruction on one of Her Majesty's highways with possible consequences to the RA, as perpetrator, and to SH3 at large. At the very least it would have necessitated considerable effort to reinstate me to a vertical position. I therefore declined to take that course of action, choosing simply to give FRB a humble brotherly hug and convey my regrets into his ear (the good one, I think).

I sincerely hope that FRB will not allow this unfortunate occurrence to in any way influence the level of mutual regard that has dominated our relationship in the past now that he understands the circumstances of its occurrence.

Yours, Tossler

Dear editor, In the light of the mud slide hashes that have been on offer in the last few weeks, I found a picture of the hashers at Atlanta's event wallowing in the said mud. It reminded me of the Flanders & Swann song (which only Gurney is old enough to remember) - The Hippopotamus Song and the famous chorus:

*Mud, mud, glorious mud
Nothing quite like it for cooling the blood
So follow me, follow
Down to the hollow
And there let us wallow in glorious mud*

Let's hope that the weather improves; otherwise we will continue "skating on mud!"

Yours sincerely, King Wally, One of the hippos [should that read hippies? MB]

And for all you Quadrupedofiles...

On Bank hol. Monday MAGISTRATO aka Rhums b. o. s made a rare appearance to in a 3m chase at Chepstow whilst ERIC BLOODAXE scored in heavy going in Limerick On the Tuesday REPRESENTING BOB got the better of SCOTTISH ACCENT aka GLASGOW WARRIOR etc. and the rest to win a 3m+ chase (gluttons for punishment some of these runners !) at Catterick The winner said ' it was too far for SIR BOB to come so I took his place' BIT ON THE SIDE tried her luck in the first but probably feeling the effects of a sleepless night could only finish 9/10.

CHRIS WOOD by Fast Company out of Surf the Net finished well ahead of ANNA BUNINA Oven and MICKS SPIRIT to finish 2nd In a 2 miler at Musselburgh, ASK DYLAN was, all the rage finished nowhere but it was IF NOT FOR DYLAN who won at 11 /1 in a chase at Ayr having been 7/7 there 3 days earlier NIGEL NOTT aka BODY LINE D'ARCY WARD etc. was a 17/2 winner at Newcastle to be a 2/1 losing fav. 3 days at Kempton later finishing 6/7, 11yr old ROYAL BIRTH quite capable of springing a surprise in sprints has not competed since November

GIBBERWELL was too engrossed in discussing international politics with any fellow nag who would listen to concentrate on the race in hand finished 5th in heavy going at Wetherby

At Lingfield MERWEB aka CAPTAIN WEBB etc. came 7th only beating GOONER BOY and 66/1 MIISS ELSA in a 1.5 M hcp The 4yr old HAZEL (IRE) aka FLEUR IRLANDAISE etc having come 11/11 at Southwell can surely only improve on that at Chelmsford later this month We shall see 5yr old VINTAGE POLLY aka Polly Garter Speedy Humper etc made up a lot of ground after a slow start to finish 5th at Newcastle. On the same card SIR MAXI only just failed to win over 7 furlongs beaten by a s/ head by DUTCH de COY!

Well into The New Year we can only iterate the wish of a Happy Healthy & Rewarding one to all those who have got this far
