Mother Brown's trail gave us lots to reflect upon. How lucky are we to be free to run, laugh, curse, criticise, state our beliefs, and drink and eat plenty all in one day.

My first reflection was the journey to the Hash. OMG the route from Guildford seemed complicated. I told myself it was going to be OK but so pleased when Strumpet offered me a lift. Hoorah!

Arriving at the car park, the atmosphere was tranquil. FRB reading a magazine in the sunshine. CL in the distance. All quiet. Mother Brown wondering if everyone would

We also passed the reflective pool where, if algae wasn't present, could be seen from the Magna Carta

Clause 39 stated that: "No free man shall be seized or imprisoned, or stripped of his rights or possessions... except by the lawful judgment of his equals or by the law of the land." (so there!! - Teq)

Masterbates brought out oysters for the picnic. He said he forgot to bring them last week so put them in the freezer for this week!!

What is the lawful judgement of his equals. (if there are any of course!)

screech up at 10:58! And they did!

A large group set off and we immediately passed The Runnymede Airforce Memorial remembering all those from the Commonwealth Air Forces lost at war who have no known graves. (This is my reflection so apologies for any errors!)

We went down hill and through the woods. We had views of the river with boats motoring along.

Many aeroplanes flying overhead. Gorgeous views. Shame I can't be as positive about the company I was with,

The run was not too long. (hmmm next week !!!)

We had a short circle.

Silent Night was welcomed as a returnee

Mrs G and FRB's birthday, LePros down downs, Belcher for enjoying hanging round the local toilets

Mrs G and Brenda marching not running

CL for arriving early to save 20p (not sure where)

Mr Bean for doing the trail twice.

Presents from Masterbates that he had also forgotten (last YEAR!)

three men and a dog. All discussing and moaning about the remake of old films and how they weren't a patch on the original version. Petal's reflection of the remake of the love scene from The Thomas Crown Affair made him particularly upset. Luckily Raffles ran up, after dipping in the river, and shook some cool water over him. Also can you imagine my joy at listening to Master Bates and Wally reflecting, HG Wells and King Oberon becoming Queen Oberon, etc etc.

Luckily J F Kennedy's Memorial made them quiet for a bit.

Thanks to Teq for our drinks bar with ice! And Mother Brown for nibbles and drinks. A quiet reflective picnic with the old peoples home outing.

Them 'Orses agin...

WALLY(IRE) aka 'KING Wally won at Chantilly as a favourite should (he's everybody's favourite surely?) - - his best performance for some time No slouch this WALLY but after the race he berated the stewards for making the course too Easy- there should have been obstacles to make it more challenging he said
MR TREVOR aka, CORPORAL JONES HEY JONESY disappointed yet again going forth at Catterick and coming fourth

GILBERT aka Gilbert/ Icepyk R. I. P. was out again having won 3 of his last 5 races but could not add to his tally at Yarmouth coming 3rd in a 4 horse race!

Now and again when Oppos are placed at huge odds I am asked do I back them myself? Answer - very very rarely but sometimes one thinks maybe one would do far better chucking the form book out of the window and following the Oppos...

I would say if anyone is tempted to try this(folly ?) - Back in Pence not pounds ! I always remember the dictum glven over half a century ago " Don t consider having Ten shillings (50 p) on a horse unless you have £10,000 in the bank ! " given by someone who knew the dangers involved.. But of course it's for everyone to cut ones cloth accordingly..

LITTLE JO aka Speedy Humper POLLY Garter etc came 4th over a mile. at Pontefract would she do any better on Wednesday at Pontefract ? No - 6/8

On Thursday TERMONATOR ran over 10 f in the first at Ayr and was fancied

In the event competing against the likes of HERESMAX KING CHARLES & MILLIE the Minx In the end it was KING CHARLES who won the day by a neck from HERESMAX with TERMONATOR back in fourth.

At the Friday Market saw The Rainman aka RAINCAP (which incidentally has just won a race at Catterick) He and Barbara had just been to Canada to see grandson PINBall Wizard get spliced and a good time was had by all (until time for the flight home) PINBALLWIZARD the 4 legged variety was last seen out in a sprint at Naas where he was 14/16

They keep expecting great things of the GREY FOX aka Alan Wells R.I.P. - do they they think he'll do a GILBERT ? - not in the same league so far but...

BTW - LOOKING FOR LYNDA aka EXPERT EYE etc showed she was far from lost; winning a sprint at Musselburgh on THE Linda's-(Elle T Shirt's Birthday!) JILL ROSE to the occasion at Haydock (Yes I know you both spell it with a G !) winning at around 6/1
Well; that is probably enough to be going on with

ON ON at a rate of knots; .1 ?
(The nautical amongst you will probably says that is too much)
Take care

Well, first down, then up, inevitable to access Runnymede from this car park, but less than ideal for a hash. The trail began oddly, when Atalanta found the On-In from the second check, and Silent Knight discovered the trail had falsies. The hares added a long loop from the foot of the path below the Kennedy Memorial to the NT car park and back, just in time for the pack to rejoin the front runners, so this was clever.

We took in all the other usual sights: the 12 chairs (for a jury) to honour legal protection for citizens, the Magna Carta memorial, the view points from the heights above Runnymede; but for all that we were back at the car park by 1145, the shortest trail for many years. Le Pro and RHUM were incl. Well, by that name at least; there have always been misfits, but now social media have allowed them to cluster and proclaim their woes, namely, that women don't want them. They don't actually want women either, just sex, without the usual preliminaries of actually meeting people. (Some of you may remember the quaint English expression "courting"). They see (ideal?) women as submissive, subordinate, and confined to the home. Incel culture has strong links to the far-right; they blend racism with their misogyny, and doubtless climate change denial, though I have not checked this. My own early life - school, the Navy, to a large extent university, and a graduate apprenticeship, was very largely single-sex, and yet I cannot recall conversations denigrating women, which I among those first in, but had not run that loop down on the plain, which Atalanta and Ms Bean certainly had. Some hares here include the Air Force Memorial in their trails; Pink Pussy (we seldom see her these days) and Mother Brown did not, which was sensible, since really the only way out is where you came in. All credit to Popeye and our Uncle Gerry for checking near the Thames, crediting the hares with a longer trail than was the case.

Ms Bean took over as GM, rebuffing J. Arthur's attempts to step in, and honoured our hares, as also those celebrating birthdays, for whom Atalanta had provided one of her celebrated cakes. Mrs G and I made a rather wavy first cut; Atalanta completed the task rapidly and efficiently, if generating highly irregular slices. Somehow Master Bates managed to get inserted and entangled in most of the celebrations; he was pleased at our explanation of his handle, namely "Teases the teacher". We have in our ranks a newly paid up member; when I asked for her handle she replied "Nicholas", though I did not ask her to confirm this spelling. I no longer have the slightest recollection of Le Pro's harangue; it is strange that while I do remember much of what goes on during a trail, the contributions of the RA disappear from my memory within minutes of my departure. Sic transit gloria mundi.

A recent, if unwelcome, incomer to our culture is the am told are all too common when men get together alone. This regrettable laddish culture ensures that girls out-perform boys academically, which men try to counter by overbearing or condescending behaviour (remember Camerons's "Calm down, dear!").

Women have recently invented a word, "mansplaining", which speaks for itself; they have also chosen to mask their intelligence. After 2 weeks at university I knew 6 men cleverer than I, but have never met such a woman, apart from a daughter (you can't hide it in the family!)
