I could just about hear the "Blah Blah Blah ... Rusty. Blah Blah Blah ... Rusty" in the not too distance, but could not make out any detail. I did catch the silence, as "The Pack", for want of a better word, widdled off after ACB(us) who had allegedly carried out his major function of finding the On-Out trail, and set the silent scene for the ensuing duration.... But not for long! He had indeed lost the plot and I am not sure how many "going the wrong way checks", i.e. trail just runs out, and the pack (for want of a better word) eventually blunder onto a check with flour quite near, they experienced before the penny droppedclang! One I expect! Anyway the penny clean circles of dirt which once housed trail blobs! THEN the blobs started up again.. HaHa this saboteur's not much cop, only destroyed a couple of hundred yards (metres?).

SO much like the last time I found similar sabotage, I WhatsApp'ed Petal with my live position and he replied with his! Bloody miles away to the South !!! On Trail !!! (so he said!) so no point in hanging around, I'll turn round and go back (forward) on the trail and follow it all the way back (forward) to the On-INN just like I assumed the pack (for want of a better word) had done. Well I did, until I got to the bit where ACBus (FRB) For did drop and a disgruntled pack (for want of a better word) widdled back and found the rest of the "in-trail" and presumably got to the end and found the "out-trail" HOORAY!

I was of course intrigued by the "going the wrong way" trail, and its more cerebral counter-part "finding the wrong way check circle" and hence the next part of the "wrong way" trail, so off I toddled.

Wasn't easy, but with Percy Vrance and Stoic Al-Jack Jones, we made it ... upto The bit where it was all sabotaged... Now;

Much like Merlin, in the Once and Future King (who lived backwards in time, bit like Gurney?); describing direction, when going backwards along a trail, can be tricky, anyway; the bit leading up (coming away!) to (from) the substantial flour on the path by side of the road, had ALL had a GOOD attempt at being erased! BUT Percy and Stoic Al were experienced hashers, had seen many sabotage attempts, ... this was GOOD but not good enough! Fairly large "scraped clean" dirt circles with minute grains of flour (self raising!), spattered around gave the game away! We were on to the dastardly scoundrel(s)!

We will cross over the road and see what leads to it, we said. Same thing ... scraped it is he-us) had started on the trail (in the wrong direction) from the wrong (other) end of the car park, and I sheared off and got on setting up the Beer Shop!

Later telling Speedy that a chunk of her trail had been rubbed, and I was wondering how on earth the trail had got that far North, she said; "I rubbed it! Yep; the bit to the North was just TOO much for the little dears, so I shortened it and rubbed out that Northern bit!!"

Well bugger me!

Sad News of a Stalwart - Email by Unc G...

Charlie, the Hash grapevine tells me that Eric is in a hospice (or is that hospital), which came as quite a shock to me and Mrs G as we only saw him about 9 months ago on a Surrey Run where he was in great form and we had a good lunchtime session.

What is his diagnosis? As you probably know he was a regular member of Surrey H3 for, I would guess at least 20 years, plus some other London Hashes, and was notorious for his terrible Runs; to the extent of Surrey refusing to turn up for one of his laid Runs!

On the other hand he was famous, or infamous, for his Haggis parties (just ask wee Bev) which were great fun even if on occasions he burnt the haggis, forgot to send out the invitations, or hid the whiskey bottle to avoid having to get out another one. Also I annually organised a walk/trek of which he was a regular attendee, even if he got lost from time to time. He was a tough bastard even if we had to

Directions

Park and start in the "Chobham Common Roundabout Carpark" (sic).

Take B383 north from Chobham, go over M3, park on right after roundabout.

Short 'n sweet!

Get to Chobham as best you can!! I'm not making anything up either; the last time the instructions were a combination of "IKEA, Taiwan and Swahili" - Teq put up with his self-appointed role in Southern England of being what he thought a cartoon Scot should be.

I do remember when we did the Three Peaks, notorious for its changeable weather and need for proper equipment, he set off in a flimsy tee shirt, shorts, and a knotted handkerchief on his head, carrying no more than a jug of beer. Notwithstanding he did the whole route, coming in first. Unfortunately all this came to a stop when his financial problems forced him to return North, where I believe he was welcomed, if that is the word, by all the Hashes that I think you are involved with.

Could you let me know his precise state of health, and if you or anybody is visiting him show this note to him. I am sure it will make him laugh even if he will challenge, in the strongest terms, some of my versions.

Also fondest memories from both of us.

Perhaps you could let me know if he is well enough to take calls, and if so his mobile number.

Thanks and ON ON.

Gerry Gurney aka Uncle Gerry.

Happier News from Terminator:

Hi Teq.
 Please will you include my thank you in next Hash sheet.
 Love Termi x

Thank you so much for the beautiful and colourful M&S bouquet I received after my operation. It was really appreciated and cheered me up on a wet miserable day.

Love to all my hash friends.

AND we have a bulging postbag (From a Mrs Trellis of North Wales) who writes: "Dear Russel Harty; Here is my caption for your picture of a little dog and cat sleeping happily together!" "Wake me up when you've finished and it's time to go Hashing."

Hi Gerry, Sad to report that Eric has incurable cancer, so could be weeks or months.

I put this on our hash sheet this week: Eric is now settled in Room 7 Cedar Corridor of Hawthorn Ward (top floor) at Ellen's Glen House, 72 Cambee Avenue, Edinburgh EH16 6FF Visiting is 8 to 8 but avoid mealtimes 12 to 1 and 5 to 6. The phone number is 0131 672 1775.

I will pass your message on to him, and let you know any updates when I get them.

The hare's directions included an "On Out", an unfamiliar expression which I understood too late. There was flour visible from the far (western) end of the car park, which we had been told to use, so I assumed the start from the (eastern) café end would bring us back this way; an error. The real start, found by a fair few, went quite the other way. Well, eventually this confusion ceased to matter, everyone sang from the same hymn sheet, and away we went on very familiar territory indeed. Shame the llamas which once attracted attention from that well-used path are no longer there.

But the "usual" trail did not go further than Martha's Hill, which the checks seemed briefly to suggest we would recall that 'Arfur Pint was reluctant to be the only female sinner in Le Pro's list; First On The Pig gamely joined her.

The PM is to make maths compulsory till the age of 18. It is not obvious that those who find maths too difficult aged 14 will in later years warm to the subject. Abstract reasoning is not to everyone's taste, even for those otherwise academically gifted, just as a brilliant friend of ours could never get a single sentence of a foreign language into his head. Those of us who do find maths congenial are at a loss to explain the problems others face; I know nothing of an alphabet of subjects, from Anatomy, Botany, Cosmology and Danish down to X-ray theory, Yiddish and climb. Nothing of the sort; the trail took us back to the well-known link between Newlands Corner and Martha's Hill, from where short-cutters could simply return, while others found themselves in much less familiar territory, going north through a lot of mud. We spent some time on the ridge to the north of the better known Newlands Corner ridge. Hares seldom take us there. Kelinchi by then had caught us up; she commented at the end that the hare had been very successful in keeping the pack together (well, apart from the SCBs obviously). Some - such as Petal and Dr Death, and even briefly the otherwise dedicated Silent Knight - managed this by crafty short-cutting, but most did the whole trail, with Popeye very much with us today. Let me here acknowledge the persistence of Birthing Blanket, always up there with such veterans as Doug, RHUM, and Atalanta. Well, Body Shop too, come to think of it. Speedy Humper, who can be proud of her ingenuity, stayed with us faithfully, ensuring our coherence; I cannot say too often that hares should indeed go round again.

The GM blamed me at the Circle for the confusion at the start, which seems fair enough, and then introduced two distinct Religious Advisers, Popeye and Le Pro. As happens every time I attend a Circle, I have forgotten which sins brought which sinners in for a drink, though we must all have been surprised when Lord Raleigh was one of them, heaven knows why. I do Zoology, but assume that given time and application I could pick up something of all of them. This blinds me to the struggles others face, perhaps psychological. Girls now out-perform boys at maths, but many seem deeply reluctant to study physics. In the case of my daughters this was geared to their reactions to their physics teacher. Perhaps there has been till now a macho culture pervading physics? Naturally some people are less affected by emotion; my own physics teacher disliked me cordially, but we got along in class.

SH3 &. "THOSE BL...Y HOSSES. !"

ME AND MRS JONES IN A ROMP AT WOLVERHAMPTON

LUCY LIGHTFOOT went to Southwell for a sprint over the minimum trip to come 10th behind GIRLSWANNAHAVEFUN SUGAR BABE and the rest SHEILA(IRE)'S last race was in mid December at Dundalk where she finished well down the field 9th/15 at 20/1

4/1 fav FLASH THE DASH over a mile at Southwell came 4th but well ahead of LITTLE JO, and; DAAFY who had done well here before but only 11th this time

GRANDMASTER FLASH is out to day in a 2 mile handicap at Dundalk and AMANDA HUG 'N KISS runs in a 7f at Sedgefield virtually a sprint in equine terms but probably 25 mins, and the rest!, for Yours Truly.

BETTY BALOO had TWOSHOTSOFTEQUILA. and the rest to contend with in a 2m1/2: chase at Sedgefield but finished well behind the former (3rd,?)

SPORTING MIKE went forth at Doncaster but at least did not pull up as so many others did due to "lots of shaggy"!

MÄRTINS BRIG placed at Southwell.

Would the 3 m + over the fences at at Plumpton suit ENORMOUSE.? Well he came 2nd at 14/1

Could TEQUILA BLAZE find anything against (his ?) MERRY MISTRESS MIDNIGHT MARY 5yr DAAFY in a 7F at Southwell No ! 5th 4th 11th respectively 2yr CANDY EYE by Expert eye went for a 5f sprint went forth and finished 5th at Newcastle.

AMERICAN GERRY went to Taunton to be out of the money in 4th/6

ME AND MRS JONES in a romp at Wolverhampton may have had a good time but finished out of the money

In the two mile hurdle at Ayr HASHTAG LORD hated the soft / heavy ground but managed to get 3rd spot.

At Taunton MR RUMBALICIOUS had his mind on other trails doubtless and could not mimic his 40/1 2nd las time and came 5th /14 at..... 40/1 5 yr old MAGISTRATO aka RHUM S bit.o.t. s made a rare appearance at Taunton and finished in her usual place down the field probably accounted for by too much bench sitting and not enough exercise.

At Cork LUCKY MAX won a 2 m1/2 hurdle with JIVING JERRY missing out for third spot by a short head- LORD GILLYGOOLY deciding not to run by.

Southwell mile and a half REBEL RAFFLES 7/1 put a good performance to finish 2nd for GREAT RAFFLES could have done worse in December where he was. 3rd / 19 in a 3 mile hurdle at Wetherby

Well Father Time stops for no man

So farewell for now
