'Arfur Pint refused to be silenced by Uncle Gerry at the start, and asked for dogs to be kept on leads (in the event, just Spud). She also spoke of numerous falsies at some juncture; since we found none, I assume this statement was the falsity in question. Before Popeye came along as Checking Chicken, we had the impression that the blobs were too far apart; I have no other adverse comment to offer. Although Newdigate is well known to SH3, I cannot remember ever hashing this particular terrain, which is scenic and varied; Olive Oyl and 'Arfur had done two recces to get it right, and indeed we were in by 12.20. I was limping, and contributed no more to the checks than a successful hint to Dr Death, debated "swear words", which television calls "strong language". The correct term, obscenities, is seldom used. Swearing is a use of religious words to assert truth-telling.

In countries which take religion seriously, blasphemy can be used to real effect; here, when girls exclaim "Oh, my God!", they are not thinking of God at all, nor are men crying out "Jesus Christ!" No, here swearing means using the few words considered obscene till recently.

When I was young only the military trotted out such words in every sentence; now you can hear them in the school playground, and they have lost all effect. This does not mean they will go out of use; people prefer to speak in words currently in vogue at a farm where Atalanta and Simple had gone charging off a prodigious distance in the wrong direction, the way Stevie Blunder usually does. He was content today to let Ms Bean acquire much of the glory, while I hobbled along in the wake of RHUM, J. Arthur, and One in the Eye, but the trail, though obviously a right-hander, was varied and interesting enough for us to come up with the real front runners shortly before the end. And indeed also Uncle Gerry and Tosser, the latter contributing the fanciful theory that the hares had allocated themselves one the left of the trail, the other the right.

At one stage we could see the North Downs, which helped us orient ourselves; otherwise I had to draw on the resources of Master Bates and his GPS. Yes, when the sun is shining one can use that, but today we saw very little sunshine. It stayed dry though; SH3 is blessed with virtually no rain on Sundays between 11 am and 1 pm.

As is now customary, drinks and down-downs were held away from the pub car park, which had been fiercely monitored as we arrived to ensure we used only the rear area. Mrs G and Strumpet seem to have used either this car park or the pub itself while we ran the trail; the latter has chosen to accept her handle (assumably based on "Ear Trumpet") as by now established in hash lore, rather than my suggestion of Riveter. (There must be some of you who still remember Rosie the Riveter!)

Newspapers have recently

rather than use more exact terms no longer in frequent use. (Well, most rules have exceptions: my readers can probably think of someone.)

Obscenities are very few in number; you would think people would quickly tire of them, but this does not happen: soldiers have been at it for centuries ("swearing like a trooper"). Adding colour to language is all to the good, but requires originality, wit, imagination: let's campaign for such colour!

SH3 & THE Fleetfooted (sometimes) Quadrupeds

FRUIT & NUT (RIP), perhaps encouraged by SH3's recent visit to Deepcut showed he was no back number when he came back from the dead to take a 2m+ hurdle at Newbury at 6/1.

On Monday HASHTAG LORD was due to run in a 2m+ handicap at Carlisle. He had placed in 3 of his recent outings but on this occasion could only manage 8th /14 -SIMPLE STAR was 11th almost 50 lengths behind him.

Recently CURLEY finger aka CURLY (RIP) has been in evidence recently at various Irish venues.

POP DANCER runs today Tuesday, hasn't hit the fine form he showed late last year (and still has not!)

In a sprint at Lingfield; SIR Rodney Red Blood (Dont mention Bl.. Bl... to him. !) had dropped a stone (has the bi-ped lost as much as this,?). He certainly seems to be stripping meaner and leaner these days though probably without enhancing his speed, He finished 6/7.

JIVING JERRY aka JERRY S BACK etc led them quite a dance in the 245 at Fairy house Whilst BLACK GERRY, doubtless reflecting Uncle G's desire to be the next Al Jolson, participated in a 3m handicap chase at Warwick .

At Warwick the well bred SEYMOUR PROMISE had to be content with 2nd with NICKELSONTHEDIME aka MR RUMBALICIOUS etc 4l + in 3rd

Wonder of wonders MAGISTRATO (aka Rhum s b. on the side) out again - it must be the spring like weather! MIKE S SPIRIT was all the rage at Sandown but finished last .

6 yr old ATLANTIAN went to Cartmel to participate in a 3 m hurdle and went down by just over a length to come 2nd /12 a worthy Improvement on her record over the fences .

TWOSHOTSOFTEQUILA romped in ahead of EVERYDAY CHAMPAGNE to win a 3 mile chase at Doncaster A surprise was created by 6/4: DOUGLAS TALKING today at Sandown , "In my book a diagram is worth a thousand words", he said.

On On at canter of
Ld Raleigh
