The Sunday service at St Mary's is at 9 am, so that really hashers can park anywhere. "Our" area of the car park is popular with walkers, but by 10.50 many of them are on their way home; inference, don't arrive early for a hash set from here. As many will be: it seems to attract hares.

One hasher who knows the area especially well is J. Arthur, who was 81 today. He agreed fully with the direction I chose at the first check, and indeed it proved to reveal the flour; later, where rain had turned Simple's check circle into a simple blob, it was J. Arthur who was already checking in the right direction when the hare explained to us what had happened.. (Yes, this hare did the right thing and one exception).

And a fairly short trail; we were at the beer not long after noon, with the hare able to offer us mugs, cans and bottles before the Biermeister got back. So I stayed for the Circle, which Le Pro as RA declared an almost unique event. "As if!" commented Atalanta, who knows me better – and indeed I have been RA myself, admittedly many years ago. Actually Hash Flash almost omitted Le Pro's contribution altogether, having found so much else to say. The RA wanted people to stand in to represent teams defeated over the weekend during the Six Nations tournament; Stevie Blunder thus found himself an honorary Italian. (Perché? Perché non c'erano degli Italiani disponibili)

came round again with the pack)

In the closing stages of the trail it was 'IsKnees who ripped through the checks; while his Countess was rebuking me for giving up too soon checking in the wrong direction, her Earle was already about to call in the right direction, and thereafter nothing could hold him. He disregarded blobs of flour leading to the last check, confident he knew the way home; he was right.

Popeye brought his grandsons to run with him today, aged 4 and 7. At the Circle he sent the younger to find Gibber; the little boy asked each of us timidly "Are you Gibber?". We pointed him in the right direction; our Uncle Gerry expressed his delight at finding someone of his own intelligence.

Well, the trail. By now no hare can find anything new and unfamiliar in this area (at one stage we got almost to the alternative car park for hares here, known as Sheepleas, beloved of Dr Death.)

But this said, Simple set a good trail, with a remarkable proliferation of checks – yes, some of them back checks, but all solved fairly fast, until indeed we came to the blob mentioned above which should have been a check circle. A right hander, as was apparent almost at once; the GM correctly observed that hares from this or the Sheepleas car park do not take us north the other side of the A246. (Well, I could think of Master Bates waxed eloquent on the subject of cases; 6 in Russian – as there were in Latin, though not the same 6 – 7 in Ukrainian, and, heaven help us, 28 in Hungarian. (His article last week says 18) Comment: how many schoolchildren today even know what a case is?

Well, all over Europe people have now the opportunity to learn a few words of Ukrainian, except here, where our government has been disgracefully hostile in its bureaucratic objections to generosity in admitting immigrants. They believe, I suppose, that "their" voters take a dim view of all immigration; this time they have misjudged the public mood.

Addendum 2408

First of all, and this is not a rebuttal but a clarification. When I researched (briefly) the number of grammatical cases in the Hungarian language, I found that opinion is divided. Simply googling "cases in Hungarian" yields a variety of answers. All agree that there are at least 18 (or is it 17?) and that is what I should have written. Many agree that there are some Hungarian words that can be declined with one of five additional case suffixes: formal, temporal, sociative, distributive and locative. After that, it can be strongly argued that rather than being true cases, other suffixes are performing the same function as prepositions in other languages. I should add that I don't understand all of this. I'm merely reporting! Hugo and Oscar were our visitors.

The King William IV was very welcoming as the OnOn, so Simple didn't have to tread on Dr D's toes and use his pub, The Barley Mow.

The GM (who made a rare appearance) said: "An excellent trail by Simple. Finally! After a long dreary winter some proper calling by SH3, good to hear people getting their vocal cords working again!" and he christened Maureen with her hash handle: "PrickyKnickers"!

Over to the RA; The Ukraine Charity Pot got his attention but his contribution remained a mystery! And then with a smile on his face our esteemed called out the rugby losers....

Letters to the Editor

Hi Briain,

The hash contributed £134.75p to the Ukraine Disaster fund after the hash today. Thank you. I am sure many of us have no idea how to assist the Ukrainians in any meaningful way. I understand that a whip round like this is a drop in the ocean given the scale of the war against Ukraine but it is very generous, as ever, from SH3. I will bank this at some point this week.

PETER'S PORTRAIT mentioned in the previous bulletin came 5/13 in good going at Doncaster which was better than in his previous race at where he fell, while SCOTTISH ACCENT aka THE GLASGOW WARRIOR after a win at Kelso came 2/9 at Carlisle, SAISONS D'OR aka FLEUR IRLANDAISE etc. was well fancied to do well in the 5:30 but didn't make the frame on this occasion JERRY'S BACK was fancied to do well Newcastle but did not show ( nr? J) TWO SHOTS OF TEQUILA won a 2 mile hurdle an earlier race at Sedgefield. An hour later DORKING LAD won a two mile chase.

TWO SHOTS OF TEQUILA was, out again on Friday and Sunday but the expected rocket fuel boost did not happen Captain Webb's new acquisition RIKONA came 2nd on Saturday HURRICANE HARVEY was involved in a 3 mile hurdle. Would he improve on his recent outings? - No! HAZEL (IRE) aka FLEURALA etc. has been 2nd out of 6 on her last 2 runnings.

At Leopardstown, 6yr old CUTE CHERRY scored a 12/1hit in a 2 1/2 mile hurdle on Sunday

Also on Sunday The Glasgow Warrior aka LE PRO's Scottish Accent Ecossais etc. was seen thundering down the hill in the opposite direction to the hash' 'Toilet' he shouted - Trees? : Bushes? Paper? I offered No- TOILET! And he was not seen again that morning. Could the haggis have been off? I wondered...

SIZZLE GIRL

Maureen's

advice for the Doc

THIS month's Sizzle Girl is attractive Maureen Miller (20), from Clydebank.

Maureen, who is a clerkess, thinks Jimmy Bone is the "greatest." "It's about time he was picked for Scotland," she said. whether Tommy Docherty does anything about it remains to be seen... but with a girl like Maureen making the plea, it's must be hard for him to refuse.

Even Dregsier!
